Say it with flowers

Another fantastic and philanthropy-filled week has gone by in Palm Beach County- is it just me, or is this season flying by?

Last Wednesday, I was honored to attend a very special kickoff luncheon hosted by Neiman Marcus for the Gardens Conservancy. Over forty people attended the event, which featured a floral-filled fashion presentation of Oscar de la Renta's Spring 2016 Collection. Frances Fisher, founding chairwoman of the Gardens Conservancy at Ann Norton Sculpture Gardens, greeted the crowd and thanked them for their generous support.

The event honored Conservancy members, celebrated the recent opening of the "Flowers" exhibition at Ann Norton Sculpture Gardens and served as a kick off for the Conservancy's upcoming cocktail reception on April 1. The Spring event for Conservancy members will feature special guest and author, Jack Staub, who will debut his latest book, Private Gardens of South Florida. Mr. Staub's book highlights twenty-two lush landscapes, including six gardens from Palm Beach.

Launched in 2014, the Gardens Conservancy is a multi-category membership and stewardship program dedicated to honoring Ann Norton's legacy by cultivating creative community partnerships that enhance educational programs and cultural awareness of the Gardens, and by implementing exciting horticultural projects to maintain the garden as a vibrant feature of the community.
