

Garden Delight

The Gardens Conservancy at the Ann Norton Sculpture Gardens will be hosting a series of events throughout the season, to honor its mission of expanding the visibility and appreciation of artist Ann Norton's work and legacy.

Gardens Conservancy Founder's Circle Chair, Frances Fisher, announced that on April 1st, the Gardens Conservancy will host a cocktail reception at Ann Norton Sculpture Gardens for Jack Staub's new book Private Gardens of South Florida. Fisher's immaculate gardens are one of the 22 lush outdoor retreats that are featured in the stunning coffee table book.

An educational event taking place this season will be Garden Days on May 16th. Over 400 students from Palm Beach County will visit different stations throughout the Gardens and get an ecological look at how a garden works. Children will learn the imperative roles that water, bees, worms, soil, weather and other elements have on growing a garden. A wholesome and heart-healthy Rainbow Salad Bar, sponsored by Whole Foods, will be served for lunch.

In addition to Fisher, Conservancy members and guests attending the tea included Dianna Bell, Sarah Benitz, Michele Fernandez, Carolyn Harless, Karen Lamb, Katrina Lee, Christina MacFarland, Allola McGraw, Anne Messer, Deborah O'Kain, Mary Page Evans, Suzy Petersen, Polly Reed, Nancy Richter, Regan Rupp, Brewer Schoeller, Linda Silpe, Amanda Schumacher and Karen Steele.

For more information call 561.832.5328 or visit www.ansg.org.

FIRST ROW: Frances Fisher and Katrina Lee; Deborah O'Kain and Karen Steele; Margaret Horgan and Brewer Schoeller; SECOND ROW: Carolyn Harless, Regan Rupp and Sarah Benitz; Suzy Petersen and Michele Fernandez; THIRD ROW: Karen Lamb, Christina MacFarland and Polly Reed; Mary Page Evans and Dianna Bell. PHOTOS: CAPEHART